quality Once the discipline of statistical quality control is in place management has objective visibility into the software development process and can control process changes to control product quality The Cleanroom Case Study in the Software Engineering Laboratory: Project Description and Early Analysis National Aeronautics and Space Administration, 2018-11-06 This case study analyzes the application of the cleanroom software development methodology to the development of production software at the NASA Goddard Space Flight Center The cleanroom methodology emphasizes human discipline in program verification to produce reliable software products that are right the first time Preliminary analysis of the cleanroom case study shows that the method can be applied successfully in the FDD environment and may increase staff productivity and product quality Compared to typical Software Engineering Laboratory SEL activities there is evidence of lower failure rates a more complete and consistent set of inline code documentation a different distribution of phase effort activity and a different growth profile in terms of lines of code developed The major goals of the study were to 1 assess the process used in the SEL cleanroom model with respect to team structure team activities and effort distribution 2 analyze the products of the SEL cleanroom model and determine the impact on measures of interest including reliability productivity overall life cycle cost and software quality and 3 analyze the residual products in the application of the SEL cleanroom model such as fault distribution error characteristics system growth and computer usage Green Scott and Kouchakdjian Ara and Basili Victor and Weidow David Goddard Space Flight Center
