

Part 1 - Cold War Around the World

1. Why was there so much bloodshed in South Asia in the late 1940s, and how did the British government try to contain the violence?

Decolonization produced horrific violence between Hindus, Muslims, and Sikhs, who had been pitted against each other under British rule and now competed for political power. They tried to divide the nation into parts.

2. How did the partition of South Asia influence the Cold War in that region?

The increased tension between them caused more violence to occur despite British's attempt to help.

3. How did the United States try to contain communism in Latin America? Where did they fail?

Powerful American businessmen convinced the US to work with opposition leaders in Guatemala to overthrow the socialist government.

4. Why was the United States so interested in preventing communism in the former Belgian Congo?

The US and Belgium wanted to maintain foreign businesses in resource-rich places.

5. Using evidence from this article, compare the ways in which the United States and the Soviet Union sought to maintain influence over the course of the Cold War.

Both had used violence to maintain influence or to stop the spread of the other. The US had teamed with resistance to control the spread of communism in independent states.

6. This article points out that the United States had to frequently intervene during the Cold War to stop socialist reformers in many places. Why do you think that communist and socialist ideas were so appealing to so many people in the newly independent nations of Asia, Africa, and Latin America?

The economic conditions the ideologies offered to them seemed far better than the US beliefs.
